The Order and Ceremonies used for the Solemn Interment of his Grace, GEORGE, late Duke of Albemarle, Earl of Torrington, &c. in the Year 1670.

UPON the 2d day of January, Anno 1669, His Grace GEORGE, Duke of Albemarle, departed this Mortal Life, at his Lodgings in the Cockpit, at Whitehall; and the same day Mr. Williamson (by command from the Lord Arlington, Principal Secretary of State) wrote to Sir Edward Walker, Kt. Garter, Principal King of Arms, signifying, That His Majesty was resolved to pay all the Honours and Respects imaginable, to the memory of the Lord General Deceased; and that he had commanded some of the Lords of the Council, to consider of fitting Solemnities for his Funeral; and to that end, that he should prepare what he thought fit to offer His Majesty and their Lordships. Whereupon Master Garter, with some of the Officers of Arms, attended His Majesty in the Council Chamber, on the 8th day of January following.

There they presented to His Majesty several Presidents, one whereof His Majesty having approved and made choice of to be followed, did then give directions in several Particulars relating to the Rooms, to be prepared pared at Somerset House, where the Body was to lie in State for some time.

After this, the Lord Chamberlain directed several Warrants to the Earl of Sandwich, Master of the Great Wardrobe for the furnishing three Rooms at Somerset House, for the placing the Effigies there in State; for the covering and adorning the Herse at Westminster; for Escutcheons, Shields, Banners, Bannerols, &c. All which were to be delivered to Mr. Garter, or to such Persons as he should appoint.

The Duke of Buckingham, Master of the Horse, did also send a Warrant to the Earl of Sandwich, for providing and furnishing a Chariot, and for Coverings of black Velvet for the Chariot and Horses, &c.

Another Warrant was sent by the Lord Chamberlain to Dr. Wren, Surveyor of the Works, to prepare a Frame of Timber; for a Herse to be set up in Westminster.

As also a Warrant to the Earl of Sandwich, to provide Gowns and Hoods, and other Mourning, for the Lords, Gentry, and other Persons, who were to officiate at the said Funeral.

The Three Rooms at Somerset House were furnished in manner following.

THE first Room was hung with Bays from top to bottom, adorned with Escutcheons, and furnished with Seoties, and Wax Candles unlighted, and Forms placed about it covered with Bays.

The Second was hung with Cloth, adorned with Escutcheons, and furnished with Seoties, and Candles, the Forms about it covered with Cloth; at the upper end, a Haute-pais floored with Bays, a Canopy of black Velvet, Velvet, the Vailance fringed, the Pendant within half a yard of the Ground; a Majesty-Escutcheon of Taffeta, a black Velvet Chair with Arms, and a Footstool.

The third Room was hung with Velvet, floored with Bay, adorned with Escutcheons, and black Stones, with white Wax Tapers, and at the upper end, upon a Haute-passe, a Bed of State of black Velvet was placed with black Plumes at the four corners of the Tester; at the Head a Majesty-Escutcheon, and another in the midst of the Tester. Upon the Bed was placed a Coffin covered with a fine Holland Sheet of eight Breadths, and eight Ells long, and over that, a Pall of black Velvet of eight Breadths, and eight Yards long, and thereupon the Effigies of the Duke in a Buff Coat, and over that compleat Azure Armour with gild Nails, a Gravat about his Neck; his Ducal Cordnet and Cap turned up with Ermine on his Head, invested in his Ducal Robe of Crimson Velvet; about his Neck a Collar of the Order and George; under the Head a Cushion of Crimson Velvet, with Fringe and Tassels of Gold; his Sword girt about him, and a great fringed Taffeta Scarff, fringed with Gold, about his Waist; upon his Left Leg a Garter of blue Velvet, the Buckles and Letters of Gold; and a gild Truncheon in his Right Hand.

About five Foot distant from the Bed, was a Rail covered with black Velvet, and close to the inside of the Rail, were placed on both sides, the Banieres, three Banners, and a Guydon; and at the Foot, the Standard, and great Banner; between these, on the sides, were also placed twelve black Stands, with as many Silver Candlesticks, with large white Wax Tapers in them.

At the Bed's Feet, was a little Table covered with a Carpet of black Velvet, and thereupon were placed the Coat of Arms, Sword, Target, Helm, and Crest, Gantlets Cantlets and Spurs. Between the Standard and the great Banner, hung a Chrystal Branch with twelve Sockets, and therein as many Tapers of Wax.

In this Room the Tapers were continually burning, when it was exposed to sight, which was every day, except Sunday, during the space of about three Weeks. During which time, Forty Gentlemen in short Mourning, all which (except five) had been Officers, gave their attendance alternately, Twenty upon a day; Four of which waited in the first Room, Six in the Second Room, and Ten in this third Room, where the Effigies lay in State. Five stood on one side of the Rail of the Bed of State, and five on the other, with their Backs close to the Wall.

Three days before the Solemnity of the Funeral, the Rooms aforesaid were shut up; and the Evening before, the Body, which had lain there, in a private Room, in a Coffin, covered with black Velvet, with gilt Nails and Hinges of the same, and a Plate of Copper gilt, whereon were engrav'd his Titles, the day of his Death, and his Age, which was 62 Years, was privately conveyed by Water to Westminster, accompanied by the Earls of Bath and Craven, Sir JAMES Smith, and others of his Kindred, and attended by several of his Grace's Domesticks; where it was interred by the Bishop of Rochester, Dean of Westminster, in a Vault in the North Isle of King Henry the Seventh's Chappell, made there by His Majesty's Command, for that purpose.

The Bed's Foot, was a little Table covered with a Carpet of black Velvet, and thereupon were placed the Coat of Arms, Sword, Target, Helm, and Crest, Cantlets

The Proceeding to the Funeral of his Grace George late Duke of Albemarle, &c. upon Saturday the 30th of April, An. 1670.

A Bout Eleven of the Clock in the Morning, the Nobility, Gentry, and other Persons, who were to officiate at the Funeral, met at Somerset-house in the Strand; between which place, and the Abbey of Westminster, the Streets were gravelled, and the Red and Blue Regiments of the Trained Bands of Middlesex, commanded by the Earl of Craven, were placed on both sides, who kept the passage free from the crouds of the People. The Officers of the said Regiments being furnished with Cypress Scarffs, and their Drums covered with black Bays, adorned with Escucheons of the Dukes Arms. All things being in a readiness, about Two of the Clock in the Afternoon, the Funeral then proceeded in this Form following.

Quarter Master.

IN the Order aforesaid, the Solemnity proceeded to the West Door of Westminster Abbey, where the Conductors and poor Men in Gowns opened to the Right and Left, and made way for the Proceeding to pass between them; so that the first that entred the Abbey, were Servants to the Gentry and Nobility; ~~who also opening to the Right and Left, made a~~ Guard betwixt the Choir and the West Door of the Abbey; without which, the Effigies was taken out of the Chariot, and placed upon a Bier; which being carried within the Abbey Door by Mr. Mason, Colonel Markham, Major Hallsall, Colonel Molsworth, Colonel Whitley, and Sir Thomas Player, Kt. (who assisted on the Left-hand of the Persons who bore the Standard Standard, Guydon, Three Banners, and Great Banner, in the Proceeding) with the help of some that belonged to the Abbey (by reason of the weight of it) was there received under a Canopy of black Velvet, with a deep Silk Fringe, and lined with black Taffata; and thence carried to the Horse, and placed therein.

The Supporters or Bearers of the Canopy, were Sir Stephen Fox, Kt. Sir Charles Littleton, Kt. Sir Walter Vane, Kt. Sir John Griffith, Kt. Sir Edward Brett, Kt. and Sir John Robinson, Kt. and Bart. (The other six Assistants in the Proceeding, on the Right Hands of those that carried the aforesaid Standard, Guydon, Three Banners, and Great Banner.)

At the entrance into the Abbey, the Dean and Prebends in their Copes, and the Choir in their Surplices, attended and proceeded between the Great Banner and the Officers of Arms that carried the Trophies.

When they came to the Horse, none were permitted to enter within the outward Rail, but the Persons following.

First, Mr. Thomas Segar, Blue-mantle, Pursuivant at Arms.

Sir Jeremy Smith, with the Standard.

Mr. Thomas Holford, Portcullis, Pursuivant.

Sir Thomas Morgan, with the Guydon.

Mr. Francis Sandford, Rouge-Dragon, Pursuivant.

Sir Peter Kellegrew, with the Banner of Teyes.

Mr. Henry Detbick, Rouge-Croix, Pursuivant.

Sir Francis Vincent, with the Banner of Beauchampe.

Mr. Robert Chalonier, Lancaster Herald.

Sir Gilbert Talbot, with the Banner of Monk, Plantagenet, Grey and Talbot.

Mr. Bowman, with the Carpet and Cushion.

The Defuncts four Officers with white Staves.

Mr.

Mr. John Wingfield, York Herald.
 Sir James Smith, with the great Banner.
 Sir Thomas St. George, Somerset Herald, bearing the Spurs.

Mr. Thomas Lee, Chester Herald, with the Gantlets.
 Mr. Henry St. George, Richmond Herald, with the Helm and Crest.

Mr. Elias Ashmole, Windsor Herald, with the Target.
 Mr. William Dugdale, Norroy King of Arms, with the Sword.

Sir Edward Byshe, Clarencieux, King of Arms, with the Coat of Arms.

Sir Edward Carteret, his Majesty's Gentleman Usher.

Then followed the Ten Bannerols, born by

Mr. Modyford,	Mr. Hooper,
Mr. Bruton,	Mr. Pollard,
Mr. Stukeley,	Sir Peter Colleton,
Mr. Fowel,	Mr. Prideaux,
Sir Thomas Higgons,	Mr. Clarges.

Sir Edward Walker, Principal King of Arms, and Sir John Ayton, Usher of the Black Rod.

These were all placed within the outward Rail.

Then the Chief Mourner, the then Duke of Albemaile, entred the inward Rail, and was placed at the Head, in a great Chair of black Velvet, with Arms.

After him entred his two Supporters, the Dukes of Richmond and Ormond, and sat on each side of him, upon Stools covered with black Velvet.

And after them his Ten Assistants, viz. The Lord Chamberlain, the Earls of Suffolk, Bridgwater, Mulgrave, Peterborough, St. Albans, Sandwich, Bath, Carlisle, and the Lord Arlington; who sat on either side, on the like Stools.

The

The last that entred, were the Lords Newport, Gerard of Brandon, and Ashley, and Sir Thomas Clifford, Treasurer of his Majesty's Household, the four Supporters of the Pall; who were seated at the Corners thereof, on Stools covered with black Velvet, within the Herse where the Effigies was placed.

Being all seated in the Order aforesaid, the Dean of Westminster read the Service appointed by the Liturgy; and that being done, Dr. Ward, Bishop of Salisbury, preached the Funeral Sermon: After which, the Dean, and some of the Prebends (in their Copes) went up to the Altar, and there staid for the Offering.

The Form of the Offering.

First, Mr. Bowman went up to the Altar, and spread the Carpet, and laid the Cushion at the Foot of the Altar. Which being done, Mr. Garter repaired to the Chief Mourner, and attended his Grace to the Offering.

The Four Officers with their white Staves went first, then followed Mr. Garter, and a Gentleman Usher; after them, the Chief Mourner between his two Supporters; his Train born up by Sir Francis Leak, followed by his ten Assistants, where he offered upon his Knee, and then returned in the same manner.

Then Mr. Bowman rowled up the Carpet, and laid it under the Cushion; Mr. Garter, and the Gentleman Usher, did again conduct the Chief Mourner to the Altar alone, his Train not born, where he did offer for himself; and there stood by the Dean, at the North end of the Altar, to receive the Achievements, Mr. Garter attending him.

In the next place Mr. Clarendon preceded the Dukes of Richmond and Ormond, and delivered them the Coat of Arms; who being come to the Altar, offered it, and it was received by the Dean, who presented it to the Chief Mourner, and he delivered it to Mr. Garter, who laid it upon the Altar; and then Mr. Clarencieux returned with them to their Seats.

In the same manner Mr. Norroy brought up the Lord Chamberlain, and the Earl of Suffolk, who in like form offered the Sword, carrying the Point upward.

Mr. Windson, the Earls of Bridgewater and Mulgrave, who offered the Target in like manner.

Mr. Richmond, the Earls of Peterborough and St. Albans, who offered the Helm and Crest.

Mr. Chester, the Earls of Sandwich and Bath, who offered the Gantlets.

Mr. Somerset, the Earl of Carlisle, and the Lord Arlington, who offered the Spurs.

In the next place, the Great Banner half rowled up by Mr. Tork, was offered by Sir James Smith in like manner.

Mr. Lancaster likewise with Sir Gilbert Talbot, who offered the Banner of Monk, Plantagenet, Grey, and Talbot.

Mr. Rouge-Croix with Sir Francis Vincent, with the Banner of Beauchamp.

Mr. Rouge-Dragon with Sir Peter Killigrem, with the Banner of Trey.

Mr. Portcullis with Sir Thomas Morgan, with the Guydon.

Mr. Bluemantle with Sir Jeremy Smith, with the Standard.

The ten Bannerols were offered by Pairs, by those that carried them (beginning with the two next to the Head of the Effigies) a Pursuivant at Arms going before every two of them.

The

The Trophies being thus offered; the Chief Mourner returned to his Chair, attended by Mr. Garter and the Gentleman Usher.

Then Mr. Garter conveyed up to the Altar the two Supporters to the Chief Mourner, who offered for themselves on their Knees, and then returned to their Seats.

Mr. Clarencieux attended the two first Assistants, who did also offer in like manner for themselves, and so returned.

The two next did the like, attended by Mr. Norroy.

The two next attended by Mr. Windsor.

The two next attended by Mr. Richmond.

And the two next attended by Mr. Chester.

Then Mr. Somerset did go to the Lords, Newport and Gerard, two Supporters of the Pall, and attended them to the Offering in like manner.

And Mr. Tork attended the Lord Ashley and Mr. Treasurer of the Household, the other two Supporters of the Pall.

These being all returned to their Seats, Mr. Garter standing on the uppermost Step, going to the Altar, turned his Face towards the Herse, and proclaimed the Defuncts Stile as followeth.

THUS it hath pleased Almighty God, to take out of this Transitory Life, unto his Mercy, The most High, Mighty, and Most Noble Prince, GEORGE, late Duke of Albemarle, Earl of Torrington, Baron Monck of Potheridge, Beauchamp, and Teyes, Captain General of His Majesty's Forces, Gentleman of His Majesty's Bedchamber, One of the Lords of His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, and Knight of the Most Noble Order of the Garter.

This

This being proclaimed, the Chamberlain, Steward, Treasurer, and Comptroller to the Defunct, brake their white Staves at the Head of the Effigies.

And then His Majesty's Sergeant-Trumpet giving a Sign to the Trumpets that were placed over the Door going into the Choir, they immediately sounded, and the Volleys of Shot, both of Horse and Foot, were presently discharged.

A Description of the Herse set up in the Abbey of Westminster.

IN the midst of the Cross of the Abby (which is betwixt the Choir and the Steps going up to the Altar) was erected a Ducal Herse; the length whereof was Fourteen Foot, the breadth Eleven Foot, and the Rail Four Foot and a half high; the Hautepasse, upon which the Table stood, raising the Floor about six Inches from the Pavement. The Four great Pillars were Eight Square, and near Twenty Foot high; and upon their Capitals were placed the Crests and Supporters of the Duke. These Pillars had two Courses of Rails near the tops, unto which, both the Valence and the Tester were fastened; and unto this also, by several Costs of Timber, the Cupulo was fixed; the point of which finished in a Ducal Coronet, two Foot in Diameter, exalted thirty Foot from the Pavement. The whole Herse was clothed on the outside with black Velvet, garnished with several Compartments embossed of the Duke's Arms, and embellished with Crests, Coronets, and Scrouls with his two Motto's, viz.

Fortiter,

Fortiter,Fideliter,Fœliciter,

And

Cunctando Restituit.

It was double Valanced and Fringed, the inner Valence and Tester being of black Taffata, adorned with Escucheons of the same, and a Majesty Escucheon within the Tester. There were placed within the Corners of the Herse also four Stools of black Velvet, for the Supporters of the Pall, and it was Floored with black Cloth.

The Rail next the Herse was Twenty three Foot long, Twenty Foot and a half broad, and Three Foot and a half high: This Rail was covered with black Cloth, and Floored with Bays; and within it sat the Chief Mourner on a Chair with Arms of black Velvet; and his two Supporters, and ten Assistants, on Stools of the same. And also to the inside thereof Sockets were fixed, to receive the Staves of the Standard, Guydon, Three Banners, the Great Banner, and the Ten Bannerols.

The outermost Rail was covered with black Bays, being Thirty Foot long, Twenty seven Foot and a half in breadth, and Three Foot high; within which several Forms were placed, covered also with Bays; and upon them sat all the Carriers of the Trophies, the Officers of Arms, the Defuncts Four Officers with white Staves, and several other Persons concerned.

There were Passages also of Four Foot wide, on the East and West side of the Rails, and the Herse; which were open to let in the respective Persons, and to give them passage to the Offering.
